Jennifer Lee was most recently selected to participate with her firm OBRA Architects as finalist in this year's PS1/MoMA Young Architects Program and was named one of 2005 "Emerging Voices" by the Architectural League of New York. She has taught at the Cooper Union and previously in the Graduate Architecture Department of Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, as well as acting as Architect-in-Residence at Cranbrook Art Academy. The work of her firm has been honored by awards from the Chicago Athenaeum Museum of Architecture and Design and has been exhibited at the Rhode Island School of Design. The first monograph of the firm's work published by China Architecture and Building Press was released in October 2005.
